RAF CRATER-UP THE BOMB BATTLE

BY OUR AIR CORRESPONDENT

THE almost tearful appeals by Goebbels that the Allies should stop their bombing of German towns were last night answered. The answer is this: The British and American air staffs have decided that by the end of next month the tonnage of bombs dropped on Germany is to be increased by 45 per cent.

Axis Lose 19 In Dog-Fight

100 FORTS SHOOT WAY TO MESSINA

Allied H.Q., North Africa, Saturday.

TWO hundred tons of H.E. and incendiaries were dropped in 18 minutes by more than 100 Flying Fortresses during a daylight attack yesterday on the Sicilian ferry-port of Messina.

The bombing force was the largest ever sent from North Africa to attack a single target. Swarms of Italian and German fighters came up to meet them, and the battle which followed was among the fiercest of the campaign.

None of the enemy were shot down, but the Flying Fortresses had to shoot down 19 German fighters to reach Messina, stated Winston Churchill, C.B.S. radio commentator.

Link near the target was broken, and before, during and after the bombing run Italian and German fighters pressed them back from all directions.

The Flying Fortresses, however, ignored the fighters, and continued to pound the targets in the darkness.

"It was a rough ride, but it was no smoother on Messina," said Churchill.

"THICK AS CATS"
The heavy smoke fell on a 40-ft. layer in the harbour, and the air was thick with the fore-bell of a stream of explosives smothered the town, railways yards and the harbour.

The fighters were thick as cats, and the smoke was as thick as cats. Some of them were within sight of the target.

During the previous night our fighters attacked the German fighters, and started a series of attacks on the German fighters.

U.S. Airmen Win Big Battles HUNDRED NAZI PLANES SENT CRASHING

FEARFUL slaughter of enemy fighter planes in the last three great Fortress raids is announced by headquarters of the United States Eighth Air Force. Nearly 100 Nazi planes were destroyed in cloud battles over the Ruhr, Antwerp and North-West Germany last week. These were "certainties," and "probables" would bring the total to well over the century.

Twins—10 Miles, Four Days Apart

TWINS have been born four days and ten miles apart. The first baby, a boy, weighing 5 lb. 2 oz. was born at the Moffat home early on Saturday, June 18. The second baby, a girl, weighing 7 lb. 10 oz. was born on Wednesday, June 23.

Both babies are progressing satisfactorily. The mother, who is in the Tank Corps, is home on compassionate leave.

They have made preparations to help the Allied troops wherever and whenever they may land, stated Agence Radio yesterday.

HITLER PLAYING FOR STALEMATE

"Axis Can't Win" Hits Goebbels

BY A DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENT

GOEBBELS, club-foot Nazi Propaganda Minister, dropped the first hint to the German people yesterday that they cannot win the war, and that the most they can hope for now is to hold out and secure as good peace terms as possible.

Goebbels, once Hitler's star "pep-talker" and now his mouthpiece of despair, was speaking at Munich, the Nazi Party's headquarters, when he suddenly uttered the most defeatist 32 words of his career.

"It" he said—"those who have made the greatest contribution to Western civilization and are now engaged in a defensive battle will see the battle by giving in too soon. Europe would be lost."

The significance behind these words cannot have been lost on his audience and it will spread through Germany.

It may have important repercussions in some Balkan countries.

WHAT HE MEANT
For what Goebbels meant was this:

The Axis has now given up all hope of winning the war. It is facing a defensive war, hoping that the Allies will be so tired that they will stop fighting and will offer Hitler and Mussolini "reasonable" peace terms, which would give them a chance to prepare for a third war.

But if the German and Italian people are brought to the stage by bombing, or invasion, where they throw their hands up and refuse to fight any longer, the Allies will make certain that Nazism and Fascism are wiped out for ever."

"HOUR APPROACHES"
Another hint that in the coming big battle on the Continent the Axis will be fighting for a "draw" was given yesterday by Gen. Smuts in Johannesburg.

The great hour is approaching. He told the biggest military parade ever staged in South Africa, where he was to receive the Distinguished Service Cross in the hearts of men.

The Allies have now developed their full resources for the final battle. The enemy has passed his zenith and is on the down grade.

But the Nazi and Fascist leaders are desperate men with a will to die staring them in the face.

Even if they have lost, as they probably have, all hope of victory, they will continue the fight for a universal state of exhaustion, for a stalemate and a compromise, which would give them a chance to prepare for a third war.

For the stability and progress of Western civilization nothing would be more disastrous than a universal state of exhaustion, for a stalemate and a compromise, which would give them a chance to prepare for a third war.

500 German Planes Destroyed

RUSSIAN AIR BLOWS REACH THE PEAK

From HAROLD KING, Reuter's Special Correspondent

Moscow, Saturday.

THE Soviet Air offensive against German airfields reached its peak this week with bombers in hundreds out every night except Thursday. Of the last 18 days, only six have been without major attacks on German airfields.

Five hundred German planes have been destroyed on the ground in the last week, according to the most conservative figure, but the actual figure is probably nearly double.

The raids have already forced the German command to reorganize completely the disposition of the Luftwaffe.

The favourite German manoeuvre—collecting a big air force in one sector on a small front—has been played between the front, carrying out heavy raids, and then transferring the force to another sector.

Now the Germans are obliged to do so in the widest possible dispersal. This, in turn, interferes with their efficiency in grouping big forces when needed for attack.

"No More Big Raids On Us"

"I FEEL convinced that the Germans will never be able to carry out consistent intensive raids on the industrial areas of this country again during this year," said Air Marshal Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory at Birmingham's Wings for Victory week yesterday.

"We have gone on consistently improving our defences as the world's colossal increase of our power, but there must be no complacency."

"Don't let us make the mistake of letting up just because we have won a victory in sight," he said. "I regard final defeat of the Luftwaffe as a long process."

It's a Matter of Life and Death

FOUR people, three men and a woman, were lunching in a London restaurant. They had been looking at a newspaper photograph of "the dead city of Düsseldorf," and the woman said, with a little catch of the breath: "How horrible! I can't bear to think of it!" Two indignant retorts came simultaneously from her companions. One said: "Well, they asked for it, didn't they?" And the other: "Isn't it about time they got a dose of their own medicine?"

The woman said: "Yes, I know, but it still seems ghastly to me."

"Then the third man spoke. 'It's ghastly,' he said quickly. 'Unfortunately it's necessary. Every German army factory we knock out, every industry we disarm, every man, woman and child we may kill, would otherwise be used to kill our fellows and prolong the war.'

"But in one way you're right. Bombing, as bombing, doesn't win this war, we've got to stop it. We've got to make it impossible for any man, woman or child in any country to set the world on fire again."

"If we don't do that, we can't have anything worth while, and I think the whole crazy human race will be past praying for."

YOUR correspondent might not have been impressed by this overheard conversation but for one fact. It was simply that the man who hates bombing, as bombing, happened to be one of our bomber pilots. He was young, bronzed, grey-eyed, with several ribbons on his tunic.

And he would certainly take a very poor view of anybody who could exult in destruction for its own sake, or look upon the stern necessities of modern warfare without compassion for "the crazy human race"—which, he would have found out long before he was sent to the front.

This said, let readers note that "Man of the People" would not lift a finger to save any German or Italian centre of war production from the fate which will befall the key cities of the Ruhr. Our enemies have had fair warning of our intentions.

There is one way and one way only by which they can escape the fate they merit. It is to stop the week which they were strong. It is the way of full surrender. Let them take it—or take the consequences.

THOMAS BODLEY AND COMPANY LIMITED, NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE

THE MINERS OF TOMORROW

WE are, of course, paying a price for our successes in the Battle of the Ruhr. We are losing many wonderful machines and what is infinitely sadder, hundreds of brave and wonderfully trained young men.

But the encouraging fact remains that our percentage losses are much lower than the Luftwaffe's and that, so far, the Nazis have been unable to deliver any effective counter-attack.

"Shuttle bombing" is the latest and most spectacular development of Allied air power and a direct outcome of the victory in Africa. There is, indeed, a kind of magic carpet flavour to the story of the fleet of Lancasters which attacked Friedrichshafen on the way out from England to our North African bases and then bombed Spain on the way home again.

They flew about 2,000 miles on the round trip and accomplished it without the loss of a single machine. This must surely set up a new record in the reliability of our planes.

It must also add considerably to the confidence of the German and Italian air chiefs, for in future they will be able to rely on the fact that our bombers are "going on home."

Dr. Goebbels, driven from one extreme of propaganda to another, is now pointing the finger at us in his description of the havoc we are doing. The radio and the so-called Press used to discuss Allied air raids as trifling exhibitions of the might and power of the Nazis.

Now he sends his front-line reporters into the Ruhr, and one of them, the "Flicker," has broadcast from Berlin that the "Muller" and "Muller" are now being used as a base for our bombers. He says, the leaders of the Atlantic Charter movement, who are trying to do good purpose on this occasion.

They intend to inaugurate the era of the "common man." They want to abolish fear, to bring about a more equal and just society. They want to secure the largest possible measure of personal freedom to all men, compatible with the rights and freedom of their neighbours.

But it seems to your correspondent that each of the great Nations can best contribute to this common aim by taking the simplest possible steps to give its own people the greatest freedom and freedom so as war conditions will permit.

Now, why Man of the People was disappointed when the report of the day in the Commons the other day, said he had nothing to add to previous Government statements about the Beveridge proposals and then went on to say:

"I do not think there is any public anxiety on this subject. It is true that the mass of the public has not studied the Beveridge Report, but it is true that it cares very much about the particular ways and means chosen to reach a desired end. But it is certainly not true that there is no public anxiety about social security in our time and no public anxiety about when we are going to get it."

AN illustration of this is the attitude of the general and intelligent public in the Ruhr, and a fairer deal all round has been provided by the passage of the Pensioners Tribunal Bill, which will establish the world. Theirs is the world that he calls Block-Buster. What a narrow view of life!

will give the right of appeal to all those who have been refused pensions since the outbreak of the war.

The House did not flare up over the Bill, as it was not a first instalment of greater reforms.

Appeal tribunals are essential to deal with existing cases, but as Mr. Bevan, the Labour Member for Bingley, pointed out, neither Parliament, nor the country will be satisfied with this temporary expedient.

There is indeed an overwhelming demand for a total and generous revision of the Royal Warrant itself. The public will not be satisfied this time with anything less than a decent living income for all men and women who have been incapacitated by reason of their war service and for the dependants of all those who have lost their lives in their country's service.

Furthermore, though the Government has not yet conceded the point, there is not the slightest doubt that it will have to accept the principle of "fit for service" for pension, and assume that any man who is fit for service during service is due to that service unless the contrary can be proved.

"MAN O' THE PEOPLE" believes further that "fit for service" is the only opinion will succeed in carrying through the main principle of the Beveridge Report, and that it may, quite possibly, insist upon earlier and more radical revision of Old Age Pension rates.

Some readers have reproached him for his half-hearted, "no-bread, no-butter" attitude to various proposals for social security. However, progress is almost always made by degrees. Let us at least let the recipients still relatively to the whole lot after one.

But it seems to your correspondent that each of the great Nations can best contribute to this common aim by taking the simplest possible steps to give its own people the greatest freedom and freedom so as war conditions will permit.

Now, why Man of the People was disappointed when the report of the day in the Commons the other day, said he had nothing to add to previous Government statements about the Beveridge proposals and then went on to say:

"I do not think there is any public anxiety on this subject. It is true that the mass of the public has not studied the Beveridge Report, but it is true that it cares very much about the particular ways and means chosen to reach a desired end. But it is certainly not true that there is no public anxiety about social security in our time and no public anxiety about when we are going to get it."

THE whole world of the coal mines problem can never in any way be solved by the simple expedient of a new requirement of complete reorganisation of the entire industry. It will require a more radical adoption of the principle of the labour-saving machine, such as the cutting machines we are now importing from America; and it will not be long before a new standard of living and living conditions for the men engaged in it.

Perhaps there is no way to solve all these things except by nationalisation. If that be true, then nationalisation is the answer. Meanwhile it is wise and expedient to do all that we can to attract the miners' sons and other young lads into this vital industry, give them the best of training, and correct living.

Physicians Want Pulpits!

I THINK IT WAS HALLIDAY SUTHERLAND—a DOCTOR HIMSELF—WHO DESCRIBED THE TECHNIQUE OF A CERTAIN GENERAL PRACTITIONER OF FIFTY YEARS AGO.

This old physician kept in the cellar below his surgery three barrels of medicine. One was labelled "Headache," the second "Stomach," and the third "Other pains."

When anyone came for relief, he would take from the barrel that mattered what his complaint, he departed with a bottle of medicine, and he would tell him to take one or two of the containers.

He would then tell him to take one or two of the containers, and he would tell him to take one or two of the containers.

He would then tell him to take one or two of the containers, and he would tell him to take one or two of the containers.

He would then tell him to take one or two of the containers, and he would tell him to take one or two of the containers.

He would then tell him to take one or two of the containers, and he would tell him to take one or two of the containers.

Destroyer Lost Bow, Sails Again

HALF-SHIP FIGHT

Now the skill of the workers at a naval dockyard has built that half of a ship into a whole destroyer again, and she is back at sea, escorting convoys.

PEGS PLUG 250 HOLES IN SHIP

WHEN Merchant Navy captains who have helped carry supplies to North Africa are spinning their yarns after the war is over, one of the true stories they will tell will be the tale of a brave little ship which was heavily bombed in a Mediterranean port.

When the raid was over, the skipper went round the outside of his ship counting holes.

He found more than 250.

The crew plugged them with wooden pegs so that the ship could continue her journey back to Britain. She arrived safely.

Another ship—just like it—was at a British port—was a 1,000-ton Norwegian freighter—has five times more ammunition during six months at sea.

On one occasion when the ship was in harbour, bombs were dropped among ammunition and petrol lying on the quay.

While volunteers from the ship were fighting the fire which broke out, another bomb was dropped and one of the ships crew was killed by blast.

This was the only casualty during the whole six months.

NORWEGIAN WIN AIR DOG-FIGHTS

PILOTS OF F.W.190s who were captured in a dog-fight over St. Omere, Northern France, will have cause to remember a Norwegian fighter squadron they encountered.

The Norwegians shot down twenty enemy machines and damaged seven. They dropped from 20,000 feet to 12,000 feet to engage the enemy as soon as they sighted them.

BOB HOPE AT AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS

(See Story Below)

The "Road To Hitchin"

BOB WAS 'ITCHIN' TO SEE GRANDPA

BOB HOPE, famous film comedian of "Road to Zanzibar," "Road to Morocco" and other films, was on the "road to Hitchin, Herts," yesterday.

He arrived in London from his entertaining U.S. troops in France, and he headed for Hitchin because, he said, he was "itchin'" to see his grandfather, Mr. James Hope, who will be one hundred years old in August.

"But I don't know whether he is 'itchin' to see me. He's a grand old boy," he added.

"The grand old boy" was "itchin'" to see his grandson. "I'm sure Bob's heart is in the crowd that swarmed round the door when the star arrived. Bob kissed him affectionately. They were both laughing and joking. Then they had tea."

Bob tomorrow starts a five weeks' tour entertaining U.S. troops in Britain. Later he will make a similar tour in the African continent.

But British troops may hear and see him too.

"I'm often prepared to leave myself to British troops," he said. "I'm sure they will love me."

Bob was last in Britain in 1939. "There isn't much difference between the two," he said, "except that when you want difference you ask for it instead of ordering."

HE'S TOUGH

"What do I think of the raids?" he asked. "I think they're a nuisance. But a butcher's boy in Cleveland."

Bob was born at Etham, Kent, so he feels just as if he were coming home in the Red Cross car. Miss Bing Crosby, although "I think she's a beauty."

He said Bing would have come over "but he was too fat to get on the plane."

"Yes, I have two children, Linda and Tony. They're brilliant. They're coming to see me. Bob Hope instead of Daddy. They're aged 10 and 12. They're very nice. They're very nice. They're very nice."

FOR more than two years intrepid fliers have haunted Hitler's territory, shooting down his bombers over his bases, wiping out his locomotives, making the night a nightmare.

NOW the intruders' ace squadron is showing up the Duce's Sicilian bases, preparing for a dash when the Allies' troops will swarm ashore to seize the island.

Intruders Carry Terror By Night

A FAMOUS RAF fighter squadron, first to begin night intruder attacks on the enemy in France more than two years ago, is now intruding on Axis airfields and transports in Sicily.

Operation Intruder, the secret code-name by which these night missions began on the night of December, 1940, with a sortie against enemy airfields in Northern France.

From that night onwards no Nazi bomber crew, homing from a raid on this country or carrying out a training flight, has ever felt safe from sudden attack by an unusual intruder. In their attacks the squadron flew twin-engine Blenheim bombers adapted for night-fighting. The first intruder was a Blenheim bomber adapted for night-fighting. The first intruder was a Blenheim bomber adapted for night-fighting.

It still has the same C-in-C, Air Chief Marshal Sir Hugh Dowding, who, as C-in-C, Fighter Command in 1940, launched the first "intruders" from this country, and now, as C-in-C of the RAF in the Middle East, is responsible for their operations from a Mediterranean base.

Flaming Oil As Bar To Allied Ships

SEA OF FIRE

ANTI-ALLIED PLAN

ALLIED forces invading Europe will meet a ring of fire—namely, burning seas of oil at the entrances to threatened ports extending so far that ships will be unable to approach, according to the Berlin correspondent of the Basle "Nachrichten."

You Will Get Less Milk Next Week

OWING to the seasonal fall in milk production, it will be necessary to reduce the allocation to non-priority customers below the four pints a week level from next Sunday.

This will be done so that the manufacture of milk products such as cheese, milk powder, condensed milk and butter can be maintained at the present high level.

Dried eggs are reduced from 15.5d. to 15d. A packet represents one dozen eggs in the new ration period beginning today.

An increase in the ration of dried eggs will, with the pulse crops and milk available, help to maintain the protein content of Britain's diet and compensate for recently falling supplies of shell eggs.

There will be an extra package of dried eggs for each ration book during the next four-week period.

Points values of biscuits are increased in the new ration period. There are slight reductions in points for standard full cream condensed milk and increases for skimmed.

Sir A. Duncan Offered £25,000 A Year Job

Sir Andrew Duncan, Minister of Supply, has been invited to be director-general of the new organisation of big interests, an alliance of the Federation of British Industries and the British Engineers' Confederation, at a salary of £25,000 a year.

Mr. Tom Driberg, M.P. for Maldon, Essex, stated this at Britain's last night. He said he understood that Sir Andrew was considering the offer favourably and that his acceptance would involve resigning from the Government.

This would mean that Sir Andrew would become the "young dominating" British employers' policy in practically all matters, including wages, working conditions and economic policy.

WHICH IS THE KING OF THE CASTLE?

While daddy is away with the 8th Army, grandfather, a staff sergeant on leave, gives little Patricia Ann a hand to build a sand castle somewhere by the sea.

Fantastic feats of gallantry saved vital hill.

Germans panicked before sergeant and three men.

They chased enemy deep into African desert wadis.

Four Sappers Dealt Guns A Knock-out

ALMOST fantastic feats of gallantry by four sappers—a sergeant and three men—who charged to the aid of paratroops who were in danger of being wiped out by the enemy, were revealed yesterday.

The heroic exploit, which resulted in an "outstanding success," took place in the Argoub area south-west of Boua Arada, where the paratroops, fighting for the first time as a single unit, were holding out against a force known as Razoubeit el Araam, with a number of small arms, machine guns and a tank.

On their flanks were gaps which could not be effectively covered, and there the Germans hurried forward on the morning of February 26.

They succeeded in penetrating deeply into our positions and, though ultimately driven off, made a new assault on the hill.

A serious position was thus created, for there were no reserves.

At the last minute a troop of sappers was rushed to the assistance of the harassed little band—and not a moment too soon.

The situation had become critical. Communications were gone, the camp was under attack, the hill was being overrun.

The sappers were instantly used for a counter-attack on this hill, and the Germans scattered in disorder into the smaller wadis to the west, where they were picked off by mortars as they tried to regroup.

The hill was ours again.

HUNS PANICKED

During the counter-attack Sgt. McDonald and three men performed the deeds which were described in a series of almost fantastic feats of gallantry.

They cleaned up many enemy posts on their own and then pursued the fleeing enemy down the hillside as deep in the wadis.

There they threw themselves among the Germans and, with their remaining ammunition, fired at point-blank range, causing heavy casualties.

The Germans panicked.

At the time the counter-attacks had done their work it was clear that the operation was an outstanding success for troops and never before fought as an integral unit.

Some 150 prisoners were taken, with much equipment and many arms.

These prisoners were taken to the line for seven weeks after the action.

Casualties on our side were light—three officers and other ranks killed and one wounded.

A small cost to pay for the heavy toll taken of the enemy, who had outnumbered us four to one.

The first phase of the battle was devoted to crushing repeated attempts by the Germans against both flanks. Large numbers of the enemy were killed in the wadis.

Then, from the left flank, a counter-attack was launched by a full company of the mobile reserve and a platoon of paratroops. They stormed forward against a disorganised enemy, and by 2.15 the paratroops had advanced far and were sending back prisoners a great number.

For the rest of the day and well into the night, the fighting continued, considerable numbers of the enemy being killed and captured on the right flank, and even more being accounted for on the left.

THE NEW DAUL

It was indicated in Dublin yesterday that the first meeting of the new Dail may be convened for Thursday next.
